NEW ROAD ROUTING THROUGH THIS CITY

Citizens Would Have Tourists Go By Business Section, Not Side Street

That Middlesboro would be greatly benefited by changing the present route so that tourists going south would pass through the heart of the city instead of merely touching it at unattractive points would be an excellent advertisement for the city is the opinion of W. D. Moton, W. C. Catron and several other citizens. The proposed route would leave the Pineville pike at Binghamtown going back of the furnace by Hoe's foundry and cut Twentieth street, thence eastward along Cumberland avenue.

By coming the present route, the tourist sees the city at the old foundry and along Eighteenth street and of course judges it from this superficial observation. This in the opinion of the men mentioned above, gives the motorist an entirely false impression of the city. The change in the routing would allow the motorist to see many of our beautiful and modern business buildings and residences and might lead to his locating here.

Davis and Graham engineers, walked over the ground of the proposed routing and roughly estimated the cost of the alteration at $55,000. This is somewhat more than those interested had thought, but it is the opinion of many citizens that money spent on this or a similar improvement would be worth more to the city than at any other place.

"You might show the average tourist a picture of the business section of the city and tell him it was Middlesboro and he would dispute it," said Mr. Moton. "He would tell you he had seen Middlesboro and that it was only a small, unattractive railroad village."

"Among the thousands of tourists who pass through here annually going and coming from the south, there is no doubt but that some would either want to locate here or tell others who would choose this as a location," said Mr. Catron.

HARRISON SAYS PRESIDENT HARDING INSULTED SENATE

Criticizes President For Stand On British Debt and Says Harding
Dominated by Lasker

CHARGES THAT BILL IS "MONSTROUS" ARE MADE

By Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Criticizing President Harding for coupling ship subsidy issue with the British debt funding report in his address to congress yesterday Senator Harrison, democrat of Mississippi, told the Senate today that the President had "descended from his high pedestal and insulted the Senate."

Harrison said the president did an "unseemly thing" in suggesting that the senate has shown "marks of impotency" by delaying the vote on the ship bill. The bill itself Harrison said "is monstrous" and asked proposing the transfer of eight hundred and seventy five million dollars to the ship ping trust. He charged that the president had fallen under the influence of Chairman Lasker of the shipping board. "When Lasker pulls the string," he said, "the president jumps." He indicated that it was not for "lame duck" senators and the president could have a show down on the ship subsidy bill at any time.

A THOUGHT

But they shall sit every man under his vine and under his fig tree; and none shall make them afraid: for the mouth of the Lord of hosts hath spoken it.—Mic. 4:4.

O peace! thou source and soul of life;
Beneath whose calm inspiring influence
Science his views enlarges, Art refines,
And swelling Commerce opens all her ports;
Blessed be the man divine, who gives us thee!

DR. JOHNSON
ARCHER GRAY

It was a happy thought on the part of the Brotherhood Class and the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church to plan a reception for Dr. and Mrs. Johnson Archer Gray, as a slight token of the esteem and affection in which they are held, and as an appreciation of his work in the church and community.

Dr. Gray has left his impress deeply engraved, not only on his own church people, but upon all with whom he came in contact. His devotion to duty and untiring energy in trying to improve the moral condition of the community, as well as its business interests are greatly to be commended.

It is worthy of notice that, when his resignation was offered to the church at a congregational meeting a few weeks ago, its acceptance was so strongly opposed that he was forced to make an earnest appeal to be released and even then, when the vote was cast, it was carried only by a bare majority.

Dr. Gray's high ideals of life and his faith in the "divine spark" which he believes is in every heart, have made him wonderfully successful in his ministerial work, so that his place will not be easily filled and his departure is deeply regretted by the community.

BOY SCOUTS' BIRTHDAY

This is the fourteenth birthday of the American Boy Scout movement. In view of the fact that the attention of the nation is drawn, for today at least toward the Boy Scouts and their work we deem it fitting to say a few words on the status of the Middlesboro Boy Scouts.

Opportunities for progress in scout craft have been sadly neglected here. The troops that were organized have long failed to do any work as an organization. Lack of leadership seems to be the principal hindrance to the work. Boys are willing, even eager to take up the work but they must have competent leaders, executives who know or will learn the work and who can afford to invest a part of their time in the interest of ideal boyhood.

It requires men of vision men of patience and of high ideals to be scout executives. Men of this type were founders of the movement.

Thirteen years ago the Boy Scout's of America was merely an idea in the minds of men who are still its guiding spirits. It followed the formation of a similar organization in England, in 1908 by Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell.

In the United States at this time there were two boys' organizations.

One founded by Ernest Thompson Seton, was called Woodcraft Indians. The other, called the Sons of Daniel Boone, was led by Dan C. Beard.

These two organizations were combined and, February 8, 1910, were chartered as the Boy Scouts of America. Since then, the Boy Scouts have had some 2,000,000 boys in its membership and at the beginning of this year had a standing membership of 400,001. This week, the leaders of the movement hope to count half a million boy scouts.

With the advent of the vacation season within a few months, it is time we were thinking of how our hundreds of boys will spend the summer. Those who are under fourteen are forbidden by law to work. The best we can do is to provide clean, recreational amusement for them and the Boy Scout training is beyond doubt the best available.

Who will take the initiative in bringing to life the dormant Boy Scout movement in Middlesboro?

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton

One day the telephone in the factory postoffice rang 'n' rang 'n' rang. A man wrote it with one of his Nick answered it.

"Hello, who is this?" asked the Nick. "Hello, who is that?" asked the Nick. "Who is that?" asked the Nick.

"It's Nick, the Twin," answered the Nick. "Do you wish to speak to Mr. Stamp the postmaster?"

"Oh, no you'll do!" answered the Nick. "This is Mr. Stamp the postmaster. I couldn't come, so I thought I would telephone. I wish they would have the Denmark postoffice out to the ocean instead of keeping it on dry land all the time. We have to depend on the seagulls to carry our letters and they are the gossipiest things and tell everything they know. I want to send a valentine to the squid and I don't wish anyone to know it. Could you please take it for me?"

"Certainly," said Nick obligingly. "I'll be right over."

"I'll be waiting near the light house," answered the whale.

TIME TO CAST OFF BALLAST

Berton Braley's Daily Poem
THE PURITAN
By Berton Braley

I'm very much surprised to find I gave a Puritanic Mind. It seems I'm Middle Class, at heart. With very narrow views on Art. My Realistic friends agree Completely in this view of me. Although I thought I could applaud myself as being Very Broad.

The charge they make is doubtless based on my Literary Taste.

For I have often said that I'm Not fond of printed ooze and slime And tales where filth and lust run rife.

Which some folks hail as "true to life."

I know life isn't wholly pure But neither is it all a sewer.

And so I frequently declare That I can't bring myself to care For dirt for dirt's sake, or for truck That bathes, by preference, in muck. Great genius can touch with fire The degradation of the mire, But it's the fire—I beg to state—And not the mire that makes it Great.

I don't like Namby-pamby guff But neither can I stand the stuff For those who ride a garbage scow And cry, "The world smells rotten now." So if the test of being Broad Is that I joyously applaud Each Pornographic book I see, Then Puritan's the name for me!

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN
By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

KATE WARD, widow of DAN WARD, was a visitor, CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was rather of her child.

DOROTHY Kate is much perturbed. Woody by JAMES LATHAM, she does not feel that she can wed again until she has solved the mystery of Dan's past. So she invites Alice to visit her at the home of her father.

JUSTIN PARSONS, Alice speaks freely of her own life but does not mention Dan. Finally Kate asks her how she made the acquaintance of SING LOY, in whose laundry she is employed.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

A slight frown crossed Alice's face. "I don't know just how I did happen to arrive in a Chinese laundry," she said at length. "Natural course of events, I guess."

She paused then: "I suppose you've wondered why Sing calls me his wife and why I stand for it?"

"It's a queer notion of his," she laughed a little. "He asked me to marry him the first day I was there. His oriental brain functioned in a straight line. I was a woman of marriageable age, he liked me, marriage was the only obvious and reasonable course. No possible previous entanglements occurred to him."

"They're like that you know, single-track minds. "A day came, though, when I was glad Sing Loy's mind had acted in that way. And on account of that day and he is part in it I let him call me his wife—if it means anything to him. I owe him that much at least. "A number of years ago, when things weren't going any too well, I doubled up with a woman who'd been on the stage. We shared our money and our possessions. Alice she was going out she wore the silk stockings. When I was going out I wore them. That's the way we lived. "She always seemed able to produce new things when the old ones wore out. I didn't know where they came from, never even questioned. You don't when you're living that way—until she'd been out one day and a policeman trailed her home. "She was picked up for shoplifting!"

"We were up in court the next day," Alice's tone was impersonal. "I was young too young for jail, and since I had no parents it looked for awhile as if I were going to be sent to a girl's home."

"The judge was discussing it when Sing Loy stood up in the back of the room and claimed me as his wife!"

"At first my impulse was to deny it. Then I saw what Sing Loy was trying to do for me and kept still."

"The judge and the whole court room was inclined to scoff at the idea in the beginning. Sing was called to the front. I think they hoped to make fun of him, make his as ridiculous as possible, but when he stepped out, neatly dressed, well groomed and began answering, the judge took him seriously and released me to go home with him."

"So that's why I don't resent his calling me his wife," Alice concluded.

"But suppose some man who really wanted to marry you heard his say that?" Kate suggested.

Alice considered. "Well," she said at length, "that is something I don't have to think of."

SUSAN READS A ROMANCE

When Susan's work was done she'd sit
With one fat guttering candle lit,
And window opened wide to win
The sweet high air to enter in;
There, with a thumb to keep her place
She'd read, wit hstern and wrinkled face.
Her mild eyes gliding very slow
Across the letters to and fro,
While wagged the guttering candle flame
In the wind that through the window came.

And sometimes in the silence she
Would mumble a sentence audibly,
Or shake her head as if to say,
"You silly souls, to act this way!"
And never a sound from night I'd hear,
Unless some far off cock crowed
clear;
Or her old shuffling thumb should turn
Another page; and rapt ad stern,
Through her great glasses bent on me
She'd glance into reality;
And shake her round old silvery head.
With—"You—I though you were in bed!"—
Only to tit her book again,
And rooted in Romance remain.

Good Manners

When a man and a woman, acquaintances, meet on the street, the woman always speaks first. Though they may have been no more than barely introduced, she does not neglect to give a pleasant, though it may be a very transient, greeting. To justify her in ignoring any man she knows, there must be some extraordinary good reason.

Flu About Run Its Course

That the flu has about run its course in Middlesboro is the opinion of Dr. C. K. Brosheer. Comparatively few persons have it now and no new cases seem to be developing. With favorable weather conditions it is thought that the epidemic will entirely disappear within a few weeks.

St. Louis doctor says they should get paid or preventing illness. With millions of diseases to prevent, can you figure the bill.

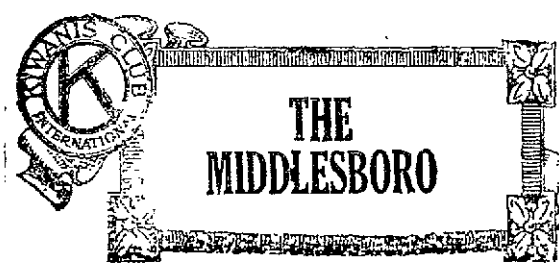

The sad thing about having a husband is he likes to sit around and let his supper get cold.

Most people worry because they are either married or not married.

Mother-To-Be, Read This—

Here is a wonderful message to all expectant mothers. When the Little One arrives, you can have that moment more free from suffering than you have perhaps imagined. An eminent physician, expert in this science, has shown the way. It was he who first produced the great remedy, "Mother's Friend." Mrs. C. J. Harrison, Scranton, Pa., says: "With my first two children I had a doctor and a nurse and then they had to use instruments, but with my last two children I used Mother's Friend and had only a nurse; we had no time to get a doctor because I wasn't very sick—only about ten or fifteen minutes."

Note: Write for valuable free illustrated book, "Motherhood and the Baby," containing important authoritative information which every expectant mother should have, and all about "Mother's Friend," to Beardsley Regulator Company, B.A. 23, Atlanta, Ga. "Mother's Friend" is sold by druggists everywhere.

HILL AND LIEBIG ELECTED DELEGATES TO WASHINGTON

Will Go To Meet With L. M. C.
Board of Directors Monday in Interest of National Park

T. Russ Hill and A. P. Liebig were elected delegates from the Middlesboro Kiwanis Club at the noonday luncheon today to go to Washington next Lincoln's birthday to attend the meeting of the board of directors of Lincoln Memorial University, in the hall of the national park site on the pinnacle.

Judge Morrison of Cumberland Gap Inc. promised to use his influence in getting the board of directors to deal to the government the land on the side of the Pinnacle bluff now belong to the University. It was his suggestion that Middlesboro send delegates to offer to buy the space on top of the Pinnacle and deed to the government providing the Pinnacle was made a national park. With this procedure Judge Morrison seems assured that the park bill will go through the legislature. It was brought out at the Kiwanis luncheon today that having a national park on the Pinnacle would not only nationalize Lincoln Memorial University but Middlesboro.

A telegram was received from Hugh Allen by the Kiwanis Club stating that he was bringing the Mid-Summer Lumber Convention to Middlesboro this year. Mr. Allen is now attending a convention at Lexington.

The Middlesboro Kiwanis Club has been invited to join other Kiwanis Clubs in placing sign boards along the route directing tourists to come this way. The proposition was turned to the public affairs committee for consideration.

Prof. J. W. Bradner presented the proposition now under consideration for recreation movement in Middlesboro. The proposition was also referred to the public affairs committee.

Dr. J. A. Gray, who will leave Middlesboro for the church in Lexington soon, was presented with a gift of $50 by the Kiwanis club. In answer, he assured the members of the club that although he was going away he would not forget them.

Prof. Bradner presided today in the absence of Mr. Liebig. W. E. Frazer was chairman of the day. Fred Moorman listed speaker, did not appear.

PINEVILLE KIWANIS HOLD LADIES NIGHT

Box Luncheon Furnished by Women
Guests Nets Good Sum
For P. H. S. Annual

PINEVILLE, Feb. 8.—Ninety nine dollars and seventy cents for the "Pine Cone," the annual of the Pineville High School published by the seniors at the ladies night of the Kiwanis club held at the Continental Hotel Tuesday evening. The use of the dining room was donated by Mr. and Mrs. Mealy. The women guests furnished the box lunches so that practically all money taken in was clear.

Hearley Card, Sr., presided at the old fashioned Friday afternoon's country school program, following the supper, and the setting was typical, including the blackboard with incorrect problems and dance stool, which was placed alternately by Ed Samuels, White L. Moss, Sonny Chappell and other "bad" boys.

Among the greatest hits were the duets sung by A. F. Smith and Carl Hoskins, each of which were written in a decidedly minor key and the recitation by Clay Rice.

R. H. Charlton gave a brief summary of the attraction of Pineville and his talk with the one given by Judge J. G. Rollins were the only ones of serious aspect. Judge Rollins told of Pineville as it was when he came here in 1888, with only mud roads for the main street and corn fields and ball diamonds where the business houses now stand, when the water supply was a barrel on the top of Pine mountain or a spring, and the lighting system consisted of candles, lanterns, and lamps. Then he drew the comparison between that and the city of today, and emphasized the possibilities of the future and the necessity for cooperation and support of home merchants if the town is to grow as it should.

Victim's Widow Becomes Bootleggers' Nemesis

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 8.—A pretty—is Mrs. R. A. Collins of this city. Her husband had taken two drinks of illegal booze—and died in business has been started by federal agents on revelations made by the widow of a bootleg victim.

At the head of the campaign resulting from the widow's resolve is Colonel George R. Stanton, head of the U. S. Department of Justice here. Raids are being made almost daily. For the first time since prohibition went into effect, it is said, men in New Orleans are facing charges of selling poisonous whiskey. A wave of fright is engulfing the bootleggers. Mrs. Collins has received countless missives of "friendly advice," then warnings and finally threats in an effort to keep her from revealing the secrets of booze gangs to the police. But she is firm. "It doesn't matter what happens to me," she says. "My heart is in that grave where my husband is buried. But if I can save other women's husbands from themselves and for their wives, anything I can do will be done despite what may happen thereafter."
